Foothills Medical Centre cogeneration initiative – Commissioning activities beginning

Alberta Infrastructure is entering the final stages of the Foothills Medical Centre cogeneration initiative. The project has been underway for six years and will provide power to support operations at the facility.

As the project reaches its final stages, the team will begin commissioning activities to confirm that components operate safely and as intended. These activities are now underway and will continue into the spring, when the facility is expected to be in service.

There may be planned and unplanned steam releases from mid-March to mid-April as part of commissioning activities. These releases, as well as other commissioning activities, can produce loud, prolonged noise that may be heard some distance from the site. While only a few are expected, we want to ensure the community is aware they may occur. The releases are intended to take place during weekday business hours. It is possible they may occur over weekends as we approach facility in-service.

If you have any questions or concerns during the commissioning phase, we encourage you to contact us directly at 1-877-236-1698 or by email at PowerFMC@gov.ab.ca.

Thank you for your understanding.

Sincerely,

Foothills Medical Centre
